European Association for International Education

New EAIE publication – ‘Implementing Internationalisation at Home’

The second book in the EAIE Professional Development Series for International Educators was published at the 19th Annual EAIE Conference in Trondheim, Norway. This practical book, entitled ‘Implementing Internationalisation at Home’, aims to support those who want to internationalise their curricula for all students, by providing practical tools for developing international curricula and campuses and offering useful advice on how to implement Internationalisation at Home (IaH). The book is structured according to three areas of focus: IaH and the institution, IaH and the classroom, and IaH and the student. Case studies from South Africa, Sweden and Italy provide real-life examples of IaH in action.

This publication is complementary to the volume ‘Internationalisation at Home: ideas and ideals’ (edited by Hanneke Teekens), number 20 in the EAIE’s Occasional Papers series, that was published in parallel with ‘Implementing Internationalisation at Home’.

Editor

The editor for this second volume in the Professional Development Series is Jos Beelen. Jos Beelen studied classical archaeology and ancient history at the Universiteit van Amsterdam and at the Aegean University in Izmir, and in 1989 started lecturing in higher education. Since 2002, he has been Head of the International Office at the Amsterdam Institute of Education, a faculty of the Hogeschool van Amsterdam. Jos has been involved in the EAIE’s Special Interest Group IaH since 2004 and is a trainer for the EAIE training courses on IaH.

Series Editor

The Professional Development Series for International Educators is edited by Michael Cooper who retired earlier this year from his position as Director of International Relations at Karlstad University in Sweden. Michael has had a long and varied career. He was elected President of the Compostela Group in 1999 and has been a member of the Executive Committee of the European Access Network since 1998. Michael became the Editor of EAIE Forum magazine in 2002, and is the current Chair of the EAIE Editorial Committee and a member of the EAIE’s SAINT network (Senior Advisers INTERNATIONAL).

EAIE Professional Development Series for International Educators

The EAIE Professional Development Series for International Educators consists of a set of easy-to-use manuals covering the basic skills every international educator needs, and is intended to be useful for all international educators, regardless of the size of their institution or their position within it. The books have a standard format and contain handy tips, tables, checklists and case studies, as well as guidance to further in-depth reading. The first volume with the title ‘Managing an international office’ acts as a form of introduction to the series, touching on a range of aspects involved in running an office for international relations at a higher education institution.

Orders

Copies of the first and second volume in the EAIE Professional Development Series for International Educators can be ordered from the EAIE at www.eaie.org/publications/order.asp.
